

Native Plant Swales

All of the parking lots at this facility are surrounded and interspersed with native plant swales. These shallow excavated swales with deep-rooted native plants are designed to collect, absorb and filter stormwater runoff and pollutants that collect on the parking pavement from automobiles. If the swales become full during a heavy rain storm, the excess runoff is directed to the wetland detention basins.