Update on New Water Tower Coming Soon

Lake County Public Works (LCPW) will be constructing a new water tower at 18534 W. Old Gages Lake Road, Grayslake. LCPW is excited to announce it will be named the Gages Lake Water Tower!

Thank you to everyone that submitted their name preference. The name Gages Lake was the community's top choice, and will be painted on the southside of the tower. The northside will be left blank.

Construction is anticipated to start later this year, dependent upon material delivery timelines.

The Gages Lake Water Tower is needed to meet the increased water demand due to new development over the years. The water tower will help ensure local homes and businesses have good water pressure and access to water during emergencies, such as power outages. Learn more at lakecountyil.gov/watertower
