

Well and Septic Evaluations

Well and septic system evaluations can either be performed by private consultants or the Health Department (LCHD). These evaluations are most often requested when a property transaction (either a sale or a refinancing) is taking place, and in many cases is required by a lender and/or buyer. A list of private consultants is located below. Generally speaking, private consultants are able to provide more detail concerning the condition of the well and septic system.

If you choose to have the evaluation performed by the LCHD, the evaluation begins with a thorough search of all LCHD records to determine if a plan of the septic system and well is available, and if there were any past requests for service regarding the property. Requests for service include previous well and septic evaluations, property additions/alterations, and any complaints that may have been referred to our Department. A summary of any relevant information that we find in our records will be included in the report.

An on-site evaluation is then performed during which LCHD staff visually inspect the components of the septic system for any signs of past or present failures (where sewage reaches the ground surface). If the condition of the septic system is questionable, LCHD staff may dye the system to better assess its function or collect samples from the ground surface if liquid is present. In the final report of the evaluation, we may also recommend that a licensed septic contractor further evaluate the septic system. Please note that the inspection of the septic system does not include interior inspection or pumping of the septic and/or other tanks, if present.

If requested, LCHD staff will also inspect the condition of the water well and, if it is in sound condition, will collect a water sample for laboratory analysis. The sample will be analyzed for coliform bacteria and nitrates, indicators of contamination of the water supply. The inspection of the water well does not include a determination of the water delivery rate (gallons per minute flow rate test).

A report of the evaluation will then be generated, stating the Department's findings at the time of the evaluation. It is not, however, a guarantee that the septic system and/or well will continue to function properly in the future.

To schedule a well and septic evaluation, please contact us by calling 847-377-8020. A fee for this service is charged in accordance with Lake County Code Section 178.01.
